

Arcane Crypto’s cryptocurrency exchange Trijo launches Trijo Autopilot – a service for automatic saving in cryptocurrencies

Stockholm September 14, 2021 - Arcane Crypto’s wholly-owned subsidiary Ijort Invest AB (Trijo) has today launched a service for automatic saving in bitcoin, ethereum and litecoin - becoming the first Swedish player to do so. The service Trijo Autopilot is the next step in delivering on Trijo’s ambition to make savings in cryptocurrencies more available on the Swedish market.

Since its inception in 2018, Trijo has strived to simplify the process for investing in cryptocurrencies. Registration and logging in on the platform is today easily done through mobile bank-id, and in July Trijo became the first crypto exchange to offer Trustly as a payment method in Europe. The company now takes the next step and launches the service Trijo Autopilot – a service for automatic savings in several cryptocurrencies where the customer chooses the frequency and size of the purchasing orders. In addition to eliminating the need to repetitively place orders, the recurring savings will provide less volatility in the portfolio’s development.

“Trijo Autopilot is without contest the most demanded solution among our customers which is why it is exciting that we can now launch this service. We have high expectations on what the service can deliver and expect that a significant share of our customers will use it. We also believe that this service will attract many crypto investors who trade on other platforms than Trijo,” comments Totte Löffström, CEO of Trijo.

About Trijo

Trijo is currently the only Swedish-based real-time cryptocurrency exchange and is registered with the Swedish Financial Supervisory Authority. Trijo provides a simple and secure onboarding process to buy and sell cryptocurrency by using BankID for identification and log in. Trijo is currently offering trading pairs in BTC, ETH and LTC against the EUR. Trijo's operations also include the news service Trijo News, which is run editorially independent of other operations.
